WINES OF THE YEAR

The results are in! Our experts around the world and the Decanter team nominated the wines that impressed them most in 2021, and they have been retasted blind by our three judges to select the best of the best

REPORT TINA GELLIE

With 40% of entries scoring 95 points or more, this was undoubtedly the most successful Wines of the Year tasting Decanter has ever held. Our trio of judges, Michelle Cherutti-Kowal MW, Matt Walls and Stefan Neumann MS were unanimous in their praise.

'It was overwhelming to taste so many fantastic wines – it was hit after hit!' said Walls. 'Given the line-up was so diverse, it was notable how much we agreed on our scores,' commented Cherutti-Kowal. 'That just shows the sheer quality and class of the wines put forward for this tasting.' While for Neumann, it was a landmark occasion: 'This is the first time I've ever given 100 points! My average score was probably the highest ever, too.'

To select the wines, Decanter World Wine Awards Regional Chairs, key contributors and staff nominated the three wines that most impressed them during 2021, under the categories of Classic (a premium, textbook wine style), Offbeat (unusual grape, winemaking method, region or unearthened gem) and Value (£25 or under). While many had sold out, or were unable to be sourced because of low stock or shipping issues, 126 wines arrived at Decanter's offices to be judged blind over two days. Neither the category nor price was revealed, so the wines were assessed purely on a quality basis – a fact that our judges appreciated.

QUALITY ABOVE ALL

'It should always be about the quality in the glass before price becomes a consideration,' said Neumann. Cherutti-Kowal agreed, but also found it 'fascinating' that the classic names came through. 'It's reassuring that so many of these top wines, which command top prices, justify them. They deserve the accolades – the cream really rose to the top,' she said.

Before the wines' identities were revealed to them, the judges each gave a few personal highlights from the two days.

In the reds, it was the three Naoussa Xinomavros that stood out for Walls and Neumann. 'It's a style of wine that deserves more recognition,' said Walls. 'Complex, food-friendly, and

'So many fantastic wines – it was hit after hit'

—————Matt Walls

I imagine these will be well priced too.' Cherutti-Kowal was impressed by the 'beautifully elegant' Cabernets and blends from such a broad cross-section of countries. She also singled out Italy's exceptional performance across both reds and whites and from north to south.

'The Sangiovese flight was incredible,' agreed Neumann. 'So many interpretations and styles, but all a privilege to taste.' Equally, he was happy to see the less common wine regions and varieties shining through, 'from China to Azerbaijan, from Blaufränkisch to Kékfrankos'.

On day two, it was the sparkling wine flight that set the tone for the day, ranging from the 'truly stunning' Champagnes to the 'amazingly different' Cava.

More whites than reds are usually submitted in the Offbeat category and this year was no different, with a host of 'idiosyncratic, characterful and fascinating' examples with strong identities that 'kept us on our toes,' said Cherutti-Kowal. 'Hárslevelű, Timorasso and Pinot Bianco are not that well known except by wine geeks like us,' said Walls, 'so I was pleased to see them stepping up to the plate and fighting it out with classic varieties like Chardonnay and Sauvignon Blanc.'

Elsewhere, Neumann singled out the Assyrtiko for its beautiful ageing potential, while Cherutti-Kowal championed the New World wines. 'The Chardonnays all showed well and the Chenin Blancs were extraordinary – the producers really showed their talent.' Regardless of where any of these 126 Wines of the Year were from, said Neumann, they each showed personality and quality.

And that wasn't surprising, noted Walls, when you consider that out of the thousands of wines Decanter's experts tasted in a year, these were the ones that impressed them most. 'It goes to show,' he added, 'that, just when we think we know the wine world, new and great things bubble up to the surface.'

Dive in and enjoy!

Dom Pérignon, Brut, Champagne, France 2008 Classic

Michelle Cherutti-Kowal MW 97

Stefan Neumann MS 99

Matt Walls 98

£225 Clos19, Lay & Wheeler, Le Vignoble, Nemo Wine Cellar, The Huntsworth Wine Co, The Solent Cellar, The Surrey Wine Centre, WoodWinters
Dom Pérignon is named after 17th-century Benedictine monk Dom Pierre Pérignon (1638-1715), who is said to have invented sparkling wine while cellar-master at the Abbey of Hautvillers. In truth, his task was to find a way to prevent a second fermentation in the bottle as the bottles were exploding. Dom Pérignon is a vintage Champagne made using an approximate blend of 50/50 Pinot Noir and Chardonnay. It is one of the highest-rated and most desirable Champagnes on the market.

Michelle Cherutti-Kowal MW Brioche, almonds and red apples on the nose and palate. Great balance with dosage and acidity. Excellent combination of fruit and bottle age.

Stefan Neumann MS Top-notch salty, mineral, iodine-like aromas. Showing a wonderful sourdough-like character with delicate roasted nuts. Depth and drive, elegance and power.

Matt Walls Deep, intense, full-bodied style of Champagne, voluminous, generous, very powerful and thunderous. Very long – this is a great wine. So harmonious.

Cantina Terlano, Primo Terlaner I Grande Cuvée, Trentino-Alto Adige, Italy 2018 Classic

MC-K 98 SN 98 MW 98

£191.75 Field & Fawcett, Sociovino

Cantina Terlano in Alto Adige is arguably Italy’s top white wine cooperative. Founded in 1893, today 143 members cultivate some 190ha of vines northwest of Bolzano. From low-yielding vineyards (35hl/ha), Primo Grande Cuvée is mainly made up of Pinot Bianco, with up to one third Chardonnay plus Sauvignon Blanc (around 3% in the 2018 vintage). Fermented and matured in oak where it spends 12 months on its lees before bottling, the wine more than lives up to its billing.
MC-K This has loads of different aromatic characters: fruit, almonds, honey... And the palate is backed with all of it, fresh acidity, lingering finish. Super wine.

SN A superb nose, grabbing your attention, wonderful creamy note with hints of yellow apples and pear, sweet quince and ripe peach. Good mineral backbone giving it a wonderful vibrancy.

MW Very lean, very flinty, very smoky. Then driving intensity and focus on the palate. A cleansing alpine style.

Henschke, Hill of Grace, Eden Valley, South Australia 2016 Classic

MC-K 98 SN 100 MW 99

£550-£595 Harvey Nichols, Honest Grapes, KWM, Lay & Wheeler, Liberty Wines, Mother Vine, Noble Grape, Philglas & Swiggot, Vinoteca
Stephen and Prue Henschke are the fifth generation in charge of Henschke’s highly regarded wines, with a focus on purity and terroir, using traditional winemaking techniques. Hill of Grace is Henschke’s most renowned vineyard, producing wonderful Shiraz from just 4 hectares, with the first vines planted here in 1860.

MC-K Lots of black fruit with a hint of dried herbs. Oak spice gently wraps around the fruit, tannins firm but fine grained. Lovely wine.

SN Elevated dark fruit with spice, chocolate and dried flowers.

So inviting. Perfect execution of aromas and flavours. Perfection in a glass. This is heaven on earth.
MW Polished leather and menthol, this has a sense of measure and elegance. Generous, silky, rounded. Fruity but not sweet. A very long finish, it’s almost endless.

Cape Landing, Blackwood Cabernet Sauvignon, Margaret River, Western Australia 2019 Value

MC-K 98 SN 97 MW 98

N/A UK capelanding.com.au

Cape Landing is an independent, family-owned winery making classic Margaret River wines. Single-vineyard wines are made in order to reflect the style of each plot, integrating biodiversity, restoration and the maintenance of native species in the vineyards. The finest parcels of fruit from each vintage are selected for Blackwood Cabernet Sauvignon, and production is generally restricted to 1,800 bottles per year.

MC-K Fragrant with notes of dill and rosemary. Loads of blackcurrant mixed with woodsmoke and spice. Acidity adds an element of freshness.

SN This is a highly perfumed style. Shows ripeness of dark fruit

but it’s not too fruity or intense. Has a remarkable balance of power and concentration yet elegance.
MW A perfumed, pure Cabernet Sauvignon that feels very Margaret River; elegant, refined, pure. Very silky, velvety, plush, but still fresh and harmonious. Very seductive.
